The AI Navigator

Launching a New Way to turn AI Buzz into Business Impact

Hosted by Plug and Play

Artificial Intelligence is moving fast - but for many companies the real challenge begins long before implementation. Which use cases are worth pursuing? How do we assess feasibility and impact? And how can promising ideas make the leap into projects?

With the AI Navigator, Plug and Play Stuttgart introduces a structured service that helps partners explore these questions. The process starts with simple use case assessments, followed by tailored insights and connections to the right partners. The goal: making it easier to move from discussion to action.

At this event, we will not only present the Navigator itself but also share the first test cases that have already been executed together with our partners, as well as hear from our network how AI is used in practice within their organisations.

These examples will serve as starting points for roundtables and open discussions on quick wins, operational game changers, and long-term opportunities with AI.
